

Volunteers needed for a study on the couple relationships of young adults in India and the UK

We are conducting research to better understand the couple relationship dynamic of young adults in India and the UK, and the ways in which gender roles and perceptions of emotional dependency are experienced and impact wellbeing in heterosexual romantic relationships.

I am visiting the UK for a period of three months to study at the Open University and complete fieldwork in the UK. This will enable me to compare the romantic relationships of young couples in India with those of Indian descent in the UK.

You may take part if you are

- British Indian or an Indian woman / man residing in the UK
- 18- 29 years of age
- In a committed heterosexual relationship (couple participation is preferred but not essential)

Participation involves

- Completion of an online survey (QR code below)
- Follow on interviews (these are optional and not linked to survey participation)

The data generated will be treated confidentially and used for research purposes only.

All data will be fully anonymized.

Scan the QR code to go directly to the survey!

Kindly share this widely through your networks.

FOR MORE INFORMATION

Contact Sangeeta Bhatt

email: bhattsangeeta94@gmail.com

sangeeta.bhatt@open.ac.uk